2. World Health Day on 7th April

'World Health Organisation' celebrates 7th April every year as 'World Health Day' to raise awareness on health, disease and cure. Let us review each of them.

Genetic code genome is responsible for what's going to constitute the make-up of a resulting individual. The genetic code map is responsible for physical, mental and emotional symptoms, which are a result of both functional disorders and structural changes in the body.

The direction of cure was first mentioned by Hippocrates. The progress of cure in chronic diseases was mentioned by Dr. Hahnemann in Chronic Diseases.

Albrecht von Haller had postulated as early as 1771 that the effect of a drug ought to be tested on healthy persons before it was given to the sick but it was Hahnemann who in 1790 first tested the effect of drug (Cinchona) on healthy human being and published the results in 1796.

WHAW 2016 theme is “Homeopathy as Preventive Medicine”

Preventive Medicine, also called as Prophylaxis is based on the Principle: Like Prevents Like

A remedy that is given in advance of illness will prevent the disease it will cure. Benjamin Franklin said ‘An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure’?

Preventive use of homeopathy was first applied in 1799 during an epidemic of scarlet fever in KönigsLütter, Germany, when Dr. Hahnemann prescribed a single dose of Belladonna, as the remedy of the epidemic genius to susceptible children in the town with more than 95% success rate. In 1860, it was recommended as the treatment of choice in the National Dispensatory, which stated: “As long as persons are under the influence of belladonna the liability to contract scarlatina is very much diminished.”

It was another 125 years before Gladys Henry and George Frederick developed a vaccine for scarlet fever in 1924.
